Report: Warming Already Here

New White House study details 'major disruptions' in U.S.

WASHINGTON | Harmful effects from global warming are already here and worsening, warns the first climate report from Barack Obama's presidency in the strongest language on climate change ever to come out of the White House.

Global warming has already caused more heavy downpours, rising of temperatures and sea levels, rapidly retreating glaciers and altered river flows, according to the document released Tuesday by the White House science adviser and other top officials. "This is not a theoretical thing that will happen 50 years from now," report co-author Anthony Janetos of the University of Maryland told The Associated Press. "Things are happening now."

The White House document — a climate status report required periodically by Congress — contains no new research.

But it paints a fuller, more cohesive and darker picture of global warming in the United States than previous studies during the George W. Bush years.

The "major disruptions" already taking place will only increase as warming continues, the authors wrote. They project the average U.S. temperature could rise by as much as 11 degrees by the end of the century.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Jane Lubchenco, called the report a game changer. SETH BORENSTEIN (AP)

'Stringy With Mucus' Never a Good Thing

Authorities said a Berrien Springs, Mich., man faces a felony charge after allegedly spitting on a police officer's Egg McMuffin. The man was working at the drive-thru when an officer bit into his sandwich on June 3 and realized something was wrong. The restaurant's assistant manager noted the sandwich contained a "stringy with mucus" substance. The suspect said he has nothing against police. (AP)

Change Empowers Young Woman

A Boston woman accused of throwing a handful of change in the face of a bus driver faces an assault charge. Chantal Williams, 23, boarded an MBTA bus Sunday and said, "I only have this change and you're gonna let me ride this bus." The driver called dispatch to have Williams removed. An irate Williams then left the bus, but not before throwing her change. (AP)

Sen. Ensign Reveals He Had Affair

Lawmaker says he regrets relationship with campaign staffer

WASHINGTON | Republican Sen. John Ensign of Nevada admitted Tuesday he had an extramarital affair with a member of his campaign staff.

Ensign

Ensign told The Associated Press in a statement, "I deeply regret and am very sorry for my actions."

An aide in Ensign's office said the affair took place between December 2007 and August 2008 with a campaign staffer who was married to an employee in Ensign's Senate office. Neither has worked for the senator since May 2008. The aide spoke on condition of anonymity.

The aide declined to comment on Ensign's political future. Ensign did not participate earlier Wednesday in a vote concerning the ailing travel industry, an unusual absence considering the topic's relevance in his home state. (AP)

Dems Scale Back Health Care Bill

Key committee will begin formal work on plan Wednesday

WASHINGTON | Confronting cost estimates as high as $1.6 trillion, Senate Democrats agreed Tuesday to scale back planned subsidies for the uninsured and sought concessions totaling hundreds of billions of dollars from private industry to defray the cost of sweeping health care legislation.

At the same time, key Democrats disagreed openly among themselves over a proposed tax on health insurance benefits to pay for expanding coverage to the uninsured.

And attempts to reach a compromise with Republicans over a role for government in the insurance marketplace proved elusive.

Despite numerous uncertainties, Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., announced that the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee would begin formal work Wednesday on legislation to provide "successful, affordable, quality health care."

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., center, greets Dr. Zaneb Beams, right, at a news conference on health care reform Tuesday.

The meeting would mark the first public drafting session in either chamber on legislation to control the costs of health care while expanding coverage to the nearly 50 million who lack it — a goal that President Obama has placed atop his domestic agenda.

Separately, the Senate Finance Committee is expected to begin work next week on a companion measure. Several officials said the Congressional Budget Office had issued a cost estimate of $1.6 trillion, with only about $560 billion paid for. They spoke on condition of anonymity, saying the matter was confidential.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of the panel, dismissed the estimates as outdated, and officials predicted the final bill would come in under $1 trillion.

Sotomayor Defends Club

High court nominee claims group she's in does not discriminate

WASHINGTON | Supreme Court nominee Sonia Sotomayor is defending her membership in an elite all-women's club, telling senators the group doesn't discriminate unfairly by gender and involves men in many of its activities.

Her explanation came in a letter submitted Monday evening to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which also included copies of several rulings, briefs and speeches the judge had not previously given to the panel.

GOP senators had requested the material and questioned Sotomayor's membership in the Belizean Grove, a group of prominent professional women, because federal judges are bound by a code that says they shouldn't join any organization that discriminates by race, sex, religion or nationality.

"I do not believe that my membership in the Belizean Grove violates the Code of Judicial Conduct," Sotomayor wrote. She told senators that the group involves men in some of its events, and no man she knows of has ever tried to become a member.

Sotomayor's backers noted that the court's only current female justice, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, belongs to the membership-only International Women's Forum, as did former Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who defended her involvement in all-women's groups during her Senate confirmation hearings.

FDA: Zicam Nasal Gel Is Dangerous

WASHINGTON | Consumers should stop using Zicam Cold Remedy nasal gel and related products because they can permanently damage the sense of smell, federal health regulators said Tuesday.

The over-the-counter products contain zinc, an ingredient scientists say may damage nerves in the nose needed for smell. The other products affected by the Food and Drug Administration's announcement are adult- and kid-size Zicam Cold Remedy Nasal Swabs.

The FDA says about 130 consumers have reported a loss of smell after using Zicam products since 1999.

The FDA said Zicam Cold Remedy was never formally approved because it is part of a small group of remedies that are not required to undergo federal review before launching. (AP)

Iran Rivals Stage Dueling Rallies

Supreme leader calls for unity ahead of a limited vote recount

TEHRAN, IRAN | Thousands of pro-reform protesters marched Tuesday in a second-straight day of large street demonstrations in the Iranian capital, defying both their leader and the government after the clerical regime said it would recount some disputed ballots from the presidential election.

Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei called on Iranians to unite behind the cleric-led ruling system despite the rival demonstrations and street clashes, state television reported, and he said representatives of all four candidates should be present for any limited recount of disputed ballots.

"In the elections, voters had different tendencies, but they equally believe in the ruling system and support the Islamic Republic," said Khamenei, who is Iran's ultimate authority.

The supporters of reformist candidate Mir Hossein Mousavi marched about the same time — but in a different location — as a state-organized rally that also drew thousands of people waving flags and pictures of Iran's supreme leader in an apparent attempt to reclaim the streets for the government.

A reformist protests Iran's election, left, as government supporters rally nearby at about the same time in Tehran on Tuesday.

IRAN'S OPPOSITION FLEXES VIRTUAL MUSCLE

Despite Web restrictions, protesters continued to communicate online.

- Backers of Mir Hossein Mousavi have distributed online hacking tools to flood Iran's PRO-GOVERNMENT WEB SITES with junk traffic, Wired.com said.
- The official online Iranian news outlet AHMADINEJAD.IR — one of the hackers' targeted sites — wasn't accessible Tuesday evening.

- TWITTER users worldwide urged each other to change their locations to Tehran to try to fool Iranian authorities who might be searching for opposition protesters.
- Twitter also delayed an upgrade in an effort to help Iranians communicate, after a request from the U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT, CNN said.

Following a demonstration of hundreds of thousands of Mousavi supporters on Monday, the regime issued tough restrictions on journalists, barring foreign media from covering rallies in Tehran.

Iran's state radio said seven people were killed in clashes from Monday's protest — the first official confirmation of deaths linked to the street battles following Friday's disputed election.

Hundreds of Thousands Pay Respects to Late President

Hundreds of thousands lined the streets of Gabon's capital Tuesday to say farewell to late President Omar Bongo, whose coffin was paraded through the heart of a nation he is accused of pillaging during four decades of rule. N. Korea Details 'Smear Campaign'

State news outlet says 2 jailed U.S. reporters filmed illegal entry

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA | Two American journalists sentenced by North Korea last week to 12 years of hard labor were caught shooting video for what the North said was a politically motivated "smear campaign" focused on humans rights, state-run media said Tuesday.

"We've just entered a North Korean courtyard without permission," the Korean translation of their narration on the videotape said, according to KCNA. One of them kept a stone as a memento of the illegal move, the report said.

The two women — reporter Laura Ling, 32, and editor Euna Lee, 36 — were arrested on March 17 in Kangan-ri in North Hamgyong Province, the report said. A third person, Current TV executive producer Mitch Koss, and their Korean-Chinese guide managed to flee, KCNA said.

After being transferred to Pyongyang, the women went on trial June 4 on accusations of entering the country illegally and engaging in "hostile acts."

The report said Lee and Ling were able to choose their interpreters. Ling was represented by a defense lawyer of her choice, but Lee voluntarily gave up the right to legal defense. They were sentenced to prison June 8. "The criminals admitted and accepted the judgment," KCNA said. JEAN H. LEE (AP)

GM Sheds the Saab Brand

Custom carmaker
Koenigsegg rescues
the troubled company

STOCKHOLM | Saab Automobile, General Motors Corp.'s struggling Swedish unit known for its family cars, was rescued Tuesday by a consortium led by Koenigsegg Automotive AB, a tiny company that produces only a dozen custom-made super-cars a year.

Having penned a memorandum of understanding, GM said the sale would include an expected $600 million funding commitment from the European Investment Bank, guaranteed by the Swedish government. Additional funding for Saab's operations and investments would be provided by GM and the Koenigsegg Group AB consortium, it said.

"This is yet another significant step in the reinvention of GM and its European operations," GM Europe President Carl-Peter Forster said in a statement.

A person briefed on the deal said GM will get nothing initially for Saab but would be paid

Builders Get Back to Work

Construction rises as economy indicates a gradual recovery

WASHINGTON | Fresh signs that the economy is stabilizing — though at very low levels — emerged Tuesday in reports that home construction rose more than expected last month and wholesale prices remain in check.

The building of new homes and apartments jumped 17.2 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 532,000 units from April's record low of 454,000 units, the Commerce Department said. Building permits, an indicator of future activity, rose 4 percent to an annual rate of 518,000 units, also better than expected.

But the gains in construction were driven by a surge in the highly volatile category of multifamily buildings, which soared 61.7 percent in May after plunging 49.4 percent in April. Single-family home construction rose at a much lower rate, 7.5 percent.

Taken together, the latest government reports, along with a recent rise in mortgage rates, depict an economy recovering very slowly from the depths of the recession.

"The bottom line is that housing activity appears to have found a floor, albeit at a low level," Paul Dales, U.S. economist at Capital Economics in Toronto, wrote in a research note. (AP)

Metro riders can add value to SmarTrip fare cards at more than 100 local retailers, mostly CVS/pharmacy stores. Giant will offer transaction services this summer.

Stores Now Allow SmarTrip Reloads

CVS/pharmacy, Giant install machines for fare card transactions

Metro and local retailers have made it more convenient for busy riders to add value to their SmarTrip cards by installing the small, portable devices to process SmarTrip transactions at more than 100 local retail outlets.

Right now, most of the machines are at CVS/pharmacy stores, but Giant is in a testing phase and will have 50 locations available for card transactions during the summer.

In months past — especially since the paper transfers were eliminated in January — transit users have complained that there weren't enough places to add value to cards. It could be done either at a Metrorail station or on a bus.

It's a big region. Lots of Metro-bus passengers who use SmarTrip don't find themselves anywhere near a Metrorail station.

And lots of bus riders use the suburban lines, such as Fairfax Connector and Ride On, which followed Metro's lead in January and eliminated the paper transfers in favor of free transfers with SmarTrip cards.

Metro says there are 1.7 million active SmarTrip cards, and more than half of Metrobus trips and almost three-quarters of Metrorail trips are paid for with them.

Something had to give, and Metro has been working on that with CVS and Giant. ROBERT THOMSON (THE WASHINGTON POST)

CENTREVILLE, MD. | Relatives of a truck driver killed when his vehicle went over the Bay Bridge have filed a $7 million suit against the woman whose car crossed the center line, leading to the accident.

On Aug. 10, John Short of Wil-lards, Md., died in his tractor-trailer after crashing over the side of the Bay Bridge. Authorities say Candy Baldwin's car veered into oncoming traffic moments before Short drove into the water.

The family claims Baldwin, who was 19, had been drinking illegally before the accident. (AP)

Museum Guard's Funeral Set for Fri.

39-year-old shot last week recently had 1st wedding anniversary

WASHINGTON | A funeral will be held Friday for the security guard who was fatally shot at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum June 10.

The viewing for 39-year-old Stephen T. Johns will begin at 10 a.m., followed by an 11 a.m. funeral service at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Southeast Washington, a church representative said.

Authorities have charged 88-year-old white supremacist James von Brunn with first-degree murder in last week's shooting.

Hinckley's Visit Time Extended

'81 Reagan shooter granted longer stays in mom's hometown

WASHINGTON | John Hinckley, who tried to kill President Ronald Reagan nearly three decades ago, can spend more time away from his psychiatric hospital and apply for a driver's license, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Paul

Hinckley

Friedman found that Hinckley's health will probably improve with more freedom and that he wouldn't be a danger to himself or others.

Hinckley has been committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington since he shot and wounded Reagan, press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a policeman on March 30, 1981, as Reagan left a downtown D.C. hotel.

Friedman ruled that Hinckley can increase the length of his visits to his mother's hometown of Williamsburg, Va., from six nights at a time to nine.

He'll also be able to do volunteer work during the visits and take driver's education. (AP)

Nats Should End Acta's Misery

THE ONLY THING worse than being the Washington Nationals' manager must be wondering whether you'll still be the team's skipper tomorrow. Such is Manny Acta's fate these days.

Twice in the past month, the proverbial firing squad has been on the hunt for Acta but missed both times.

This past weekend, the move seemed assured after Fox reported Washington was ready to pull the trigger. But, for whatever reason, it didn't. So, Monday's silence became news. It looks like it will be business as usual for the Nats when they visit the New York Yankees.

The proverbial firing squad has been on the hunt for Acta but missed both times.

Running a team that's lost 24 of 29 games — and has a measly 16 wins this season — means Acta's spot on the hot seat is understandable, if not deserved.

Acta called this squad the most talented he's had in Washington, yet it's on pace for a worse season than last year's worst-place finish. (On the bright side, high school phenom Bryce Harper is in line to be the Nats' top pick in the 2010 draft.)

The bullpen is the root of the problem. Acta can't be blamed for a dearth of talent at that position. Washington's atrocious defense is another matter.

Acta will likely be fired someday soon. The least Washington can do is just end this speculation once and for all.

By developing ways to involve their fans, the first-year Seattle Sounders have created a rowdy atmosphere. They lead the MLS in season-ticket holders with 20,000-plus.

For Goalie Wicks, No Minor Test

Sounders and the fury await United in trip to the Emerald City

UNITED | The last time Josh Wicks played in Seattle, he was a minor league goalkeeper toiling before fewer than 4,000 fans. A lot has changed in two years. Now Wicks is the unquestioned starter for MLS' most storied club, and the Emerald City is home to an expansion team that's become an unlikely sports phenomenon.

D.C. United (5-2-7) has surged to the top of the East, thanks largely to the play of Wicks, 25, who seized the starting spot in late May and has yielded just three goals in four games. He's been a commanding presence in back and has salvaged points with big saves, including a late penalty kick stop on Chicago's Brian McBride last Saturday.

Wicks called it "the greatest thrill I've had in a game in a long time," and it was a long time coming. After three years in the minors with Vancouver and Portland and one on the Los Angeles Galaxy's bench, Wicks was traded to D.C. and started the first two games of the season in place of the injured Louis Crayton. Then it was back to the sidelines.

"I'm healthier now. I'm not carrying any injuries. I lost 10 to 12 pounds," Wicks said of his work in the interim. "I buckled down, trained hard and fought back."

On Wednesday, he'll look for a third-straight win in Seattle against the Sounders (5-3-5), who bear no resemblance to the minor league team of the same name he used to play against. Anchored by former U.S. national team goalie Kasey Keller, the Sounders have realized soccer's potential. They draw raucous crowds in excess of 30,000 at Qwest Field and have developed innovative ways to involve their green-clad fans, allowing them to vote for everything from the club name to the general manager.

Wicks called the atmosphere "amazing" and said he's looking forward to the challenge. "If you don't get nervous, there's something wrong with you. I still get nerves even though I've got confidence playing this stretch of games. When the game starts, it goes away and I just play my game." BRIAN STRAUSS

Nationals Demote Bergmann, Welcome Back Wells

NATIONALS | Right-hander Kip Wells has been activated from the 15-day disabled list by the Washington Nationals, who optioned right-hander Jason Bergmann to Triple-A Syracuse.

Wells, 0-2 with a 6.26 ERA and two saves in 19 appearances for the Nationals, went on the disabled list June 2 with a right adductor strain, a move retroactive to May 31.

Bergmann is 0-1 with a 6.91 ERA in 14 games.

Rookie Marissa Coleman suffered a high ankle sprain over the weekend that will likely cause her to miss four to six weeks. Through three games, Coleman has been a dynamic presence for the undefeated Mystics, averaging 12.7 points per game in 23.3 minutes per game as a key cog in coach Julie Plank's system. To help fill the void left by Coleman's absence, Washington released rookie center Josephine Owino and re-signed forward Kris-ten Mann. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Bankruptcy Judge Blocks Coyotes' Move to Ontario
Professional hockey will live on in the desert, at least for a while. Billionaire Jim Balsillie failed in his bid to have a bankruptcy court judge order the Phoenix Coyotes sold to him and, over the NHL's objection, moved to Hamilton, Ontario. His downfall was his self-imposed June 29 deadline for completing the deal. Redfield T. Baum, chief judge of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Phoenix, concluded in a 21-page ruling Monday there was no way to resolve the case by then. (AP)

Healthy Outlook for Woods at Open

With knee recovered, Tiger aims for repeat Bethpage Black win

GOLF | Tiger Woods played his final nine holes of practice Tuesday morning in advance of the U.S. Open, which begins Thursday at Bethpage Black. He did so on a golf course that he described as incredibly long and "phenomenal," but one he clearly feels he can master, as he did in 2002, when he won the second of his three Open championships here.

"I like my chances in any major," he said. "I just enjoy having to think your way around the golf course."

Woods, 33, arrives at Bethpage Black as the winner not only of the last U.S. Open played on the Long Island public course, but as the defending U.S. Open champion — a title earned with his thrilling, 91-hole victory over Rocco Mediate last year at Torrey Pines — and as a winner in his most recent tournament, the Memorial, which he won in come-from-behind fashion.

When Woods won the U.S.

Open a year ago, he did so on a left knee that needed to be surgically repaired and a tibia that suffered from stress fractures. Now, with wins at the Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill and at the Memorial this year on the PGA Tour, he said the leg is at full strength, something he could not say at the year's first major, the Masters in April, when he tied for sixth.

"You think that after the surgery, 'I feel so great' six or eight months later," Woods said. "But everyone says, 'Just imagine what you feel like in another six months.' I keep getting better and better. It's fun because, before, no matter what I did, I kept getting worse. No matter how hard I trained, the leg was deteriorating. I kept doing more damage to the thing. Now, it's the exact opposite."

Cavaliers rest bullpen ahead of 2nd-straight elimination matchup

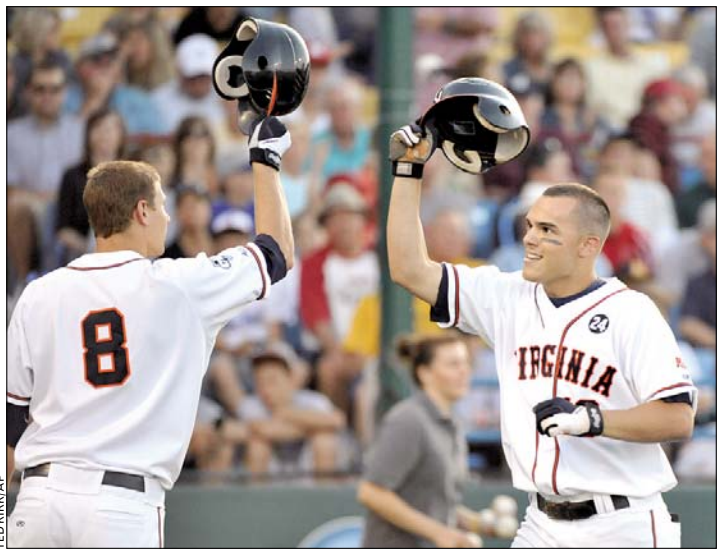

COLLEGE BASEBALL | When Virginia relievers Matt Packer and Tyler Wilson returned from Rosenblatt Stadium after the Cavaliers' College World Series win on Monday, they each independently ventured to the workout room at the team hotel.

Packer ran 12 minutes on the treadmill, alternating between sprinting and light jogging. Wilson's regimen included 1½ miles on the treadmill at a steady pace.

Both participated in Tuesday's practice, although neither pitched — part of their efforts to preserve their arms.

The Cavaliers face their second consecutive elimination game on Wednesday against Arkansas. After using two starters to help overcome Cal State Fullerton on Monday, coach Brian O'Connor will likely need to turn to his bullpen early again on Wednesday.

The top two relief options are

After an upset win over second-seeded Cal St.-Fullerton to survive in the College World Series, Virginia faces Arkansas in its second-straight elimination game.

Packer and Wilson, the only players to pitch in both College World Series games.

"This time of the year, you gut it out, and they've continued to gut it out," O'Connor said. "This is what you do it for. You got to gut it for one more week."

Although he does not have a well-rested top-three starter, O'Connor plans to operate without much regard for any game besides Wednesday's.

However, even O'Connor acknowledged that it would be helpful if Virginia can survive without calling upon Danny Hultzen and Robert Morey — the starters in the first two games.

"This is the big ballgame to get through," O'Connor said.

RESEARCH

2009 - 2010 Research Fellowship Program

Description:

The U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) is proud to announce the establishment of the Joseph R. Crapa Fellowship Program in memory of Joe Crapa, who served as Executive Director of USCIRF from 2002-2007. The term of each fellowship will be determined by the nature of the fellow's project, but will not exceed 12 months. It is expected that fellows will spend a substantial portion of their fellowship in residence at the USCIRF offices in Washington, DC, though alternate arrangements may be made as necessary.

Qualifications:

The funded fellowships are available to select individuals with exceptional records of accomplishment and/or outstanding records of academic achievement in relevant fields to the work of the Commission, including but not limited to, human rights, foreign policy, international law, and security. Applicants from the Hill, government agencies (including the military and intelligence agencies), academia, the NGO community, think tanks, and other relevant backgrounds are welcome.

Applicants for a Crapa Fellowship should submit a proposal detailing the parameters of the project they intend to pursue during their time as a Crapa Fellow. This proposal should include a succinct statement of the area of intended study, the relevance of the study to the field of religious freedom, the format and timing of the product they propose to produce, and a brief overview of relevant existing work in the area of proposed study. In addition, applicants should send a cover letter, resume, writing sample, and the names of three professional references the Commission can contact directly. Applications are due by July 13, 2009.

The following list provides examples of the areas the Commission is interested in further study on, but is not intended to be exhaustive:

- The role of religion and religious freedom in counterinsurgencies and in combating religious extremism
- The developing parameters of religious freedom under international law, including an analysis of significant trends and strategies to impact the development in positive directions
- The impact of religious freedom in advancing the rights of women
- Government-sponsored intolerant materials and its impact on religious freedom
- Utilizing U.S. assistance effectively to promote and advance religious freedom
- Employing public diplomacy tools to advance religious freedom
- Developing a curriculum on religion and religious freedom for the Foreign Service Institute

Contact:

Applications should be submitted electronically to: crapafellows@uscirf.gov

Spinal Tap harnesses digital power to help promote its album 'Back From the Dead'

OLD BUT GOOD | Spinal Tap is "Back From the Dead" — at least, according to the title of the group's new album. Tuesday's release commemorates the 25th anniversary of the cult-classic film "This Is Spinal Tap."

David St. Hubbins (Michael McKean), Derek Smalls (Harry Shearer) and Nigel Tufnel (Christopher Guest) have "revisited and reimagined" their 1984 soundtrack compositions. They've also included six new songs on the album, which will be released on their independent label, Label Industry Records.

The album includes the newly interpreted Tap classics "Hell Hole," "Tonight I'm Gonna Rock You Tonight," "Big Bottom," "(Funky) Sex Farm," "Stonehenge," "Gimme Some Money" and "(Listen to the) Flower People." iTunes will offer an exclusive version of "Sex Farm," and Amazon will carry its own version of "Flower People." A free download of the previously unreleased "Saucy Jack" — from Hubbins' unfinished musical about Jack the Ripper — can be found at Spinaltap.com.

New Spinal Tap songs include "Warmer Than Hell," "Short and Sweet" (with guests Phil Collen, Keith Emerson, John Mayer and Steve Vai), "Celtic Blues" and "Jazz Odyssey." Through e-mail — and in character — Guest says the new songs "were chosen by our ability to learn them. We all write everything, although some of us write some stuff more than others."

The album, billed as a "perfect combination of loudness, vulgarity and a pinch of evil," was produced by CJ Vanston. "He's got great ears," Guest says. "He hears loud the way most producers hear soft."

Noting the tracks are louder because they're digital, Guest adds, "We've always burned with the desire to have people hear these songs as they were meant to be heard — with performance royalties flowing to us."

The physical release will include a pop-up diorama package that unveils three 12-inch action figures of the band along with a proportionally sized Stonehenge. The group will also release an 11-inch, limited-edition vinyl album.

Video clips from the original movie are on YouTube and Daily Motion, among other outlets, and a Blu-ray version of the movie is due out July 14.

Shearer (in character) says the group intends to stay active. "There are no chapters in this book, only page numbers," he writes in an e-mail. "There will be many future projects." KEN TUCKER (BILLBOARD)

Holly is Hank Williams Jr.'s daughter.

Intimate Portrait of A Williams

A singer sticks to her family's tradition of candid self-revelation

MUSIC | Among Hank Williams' clan, celebrating family tradition is a family tradition. Hank Jr. often has, as does Bocephus' daughter, Holly Williams. On her second album, "Here With Me," the 28-year-old singer and songwriter extends the tradition of self-revelation she put forth convincingly in her excellent 2004 debut.

Williams doesn't go in so much for her granddaddy's perfectly honed use of language, but she does share his penchant for disarming vulnerability.

In "Mama," she's crafted a moving thank-you note to a matriarch who resisted the post-divorce temptation to demonize her ex.

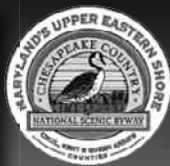

On "Without Jesus Here With Me," Williams refers to a spiritual awakening, but it could as easily apply to the self-illumination that shines through in her music — another Williams family tradition.

Whatchu Gonna Play?

The 'Ghostbusters' game comes with the original cast's voices and strong visuals

VIDEO GAME | Movie comedies rarely lead to funny sequels. Take "Ghostbusters," whose blockbuster success in 1984 led to "Ghostbusters II" five years later. Critics, fans and, reportedly, some of the cast felt let down by the result.

That hasn't stopped admirers of the original — including a new generation of fans who weren't born when it came out — from hoping for another sequel. And after all these years, original Ghostbuster Dan Aykroyd is saying a third feature film could begin shooting this year.

To whet your appetite, there's "Ghostbusters: The Video Game" (Atari, for the Xbox 360, PlayStation 3, $59.99; Wii, $39.99). Its developer, Terminal Reality, has accomplished something Hollywood hasn't been able to do in 20 years by reuniting the four core members of the cast: Aykroyd, Dr. Egon Spengler (voiced by Harold Ramis) clearly ain't afraid of no ghosts.

Bill Murray, Harold Ramis and Ernie Hudson.

OK, we're talking about computer-animated versions of the main characters, but the actors did return to provide their voices. Aykroyd and Ramis also helped with the script, and Ray Parker Jr.'s infectious theme song is heard throughout. The game is set two years after the events of "Ghostbusters II," so the guys all look the way they would have in 1991. Once again, New York City is under siege by a wave of supernatural spirits — some familiar (the Stay Puft Marshmallow Man) and some new (a vicious sea captain).

"Ghostbusters" is meant to feel like a movie, and it's very linear. The animation is largely solid, although there are occasional lip-synching glitches.

The story is surprisingly clever, and there's nice banter among the 'Busters as they vacuum up Manhattan's wraiths. Murray's delivery is somewhat blase, but the rest of the cast, including newcomer Alyssa Milano, dives enthusiastically into this nonsense.

'The Beast' Is Going Quiet Now

CANCELLATION | "The Beast," a police drama that starred the ailing Patrick Swayze, will not return for a second season, A&E announced Monday.

The series, which premiered in January, starred Swayze as Charles Barker, a rogue undercover FBI agent who was teamed up with rookie Ellis Dove (Travis Fimmel). The series was filmed on location in Chicago.

Reviews for the series were

mixed, and its audience averaged 1.3 million viewers through the 13 episodes, which concluded their run in April.

But Swayze was unstinting in a rough-and-tumble performance that he maintained while battling pancreatic cancer. His illness had no discernible effect on his gritty portrayal.

A&E President Bob DeBitetto called the performance "an inspiration to us all."

DeBitetto said the series "has been a labor of love for everyone," but added that "after careful deliberation, we have reluctantly decided not to attempt a second season."

Known for such films as "Ghost" and "Dirty Dancing," the 56-year-old Swayze went public with his diagnosis in 2008.

A memoir by him and Lisa Niemi, his wife of more 30 years, is scheduled for publication in the fall. The book is expected to offer an intimate account of his childhood, career and marriage, and as his fight against the cancer.

Merrill Nisker was an elementary school teacher before she became known as Peaches, the provocative electronica star, breaking down walls between the genders. Tim Rice's Bold Move

Tonight, 'Chess in Concert' makes its small-screen debut

MUSICAL | Tim Rice has been playing the "Chess" game for more than 25 years, and the lyricist will go another round as PBS' "Great Performances" serves up "Chess in Concert."

"I think we're finally getting it right," Rice told the 5,000 audience members who packed London's Royal Albert Hall to see pop singer Josh Groban and Broadway stars Idina Menzel ("Wicked") and Adam Pascal ("Rent") head up a concert production of the musical in May 2008, recorded for the PBS presentation airing tonight at 9 p.m.

"Chess" was inspired by the 1972 chess match between American Bobby Fischer and Russian

TRISTRAM KENTON

Josh Groban, Idina Menzel and Adam Pascal perform in tonight's "Chess" on PBS.

Boris Spassky.

Rice said he didn't have any great fascination with the game itself but was intrigued that "each side had the wrong guy."

"The Americans, who from our point of view in the West, who were meant to be the good guys, had a real bum in Fisher," he said. "And the Russians, who were meant to be the bad guys from the West's point of view, had a really nice guy in Spassky."

Rice imagined the two players as fictional characters in a love triangle that served as an allegory for East-West tensions.

Tourists enjoy a beach in Cancun, Mexico, last week. After the swine flu outbreak was first detected in Mexico this spring, prices at hotels and resorts plummeted.

Healthy Optimism
South of the Border

After a flu outbreak,
Mexico's hot spots
are emptier, cheaper

TULUM, MEXICO | The last time Bud Olson visited Mexico, he ended up in a hospital with kidney stones and missed the ancient Mayan ruins in the seaside town of Tulum.

So, when he heard that swine flu was sweeping through Mexico just weeks before he was to return this year, the 43-year-old Seattle resident and his friends threw all caution to the warm Caribbean breezes and went anyway.

Olson is one of the intrepid few who decided to come to Mexico in the throes of the epidemic.

His reward? No lines, great service, empty beaches and lower prices.

Olson's friend Penny Moeller, 44, says she ended up paying $142 a week for a rental car she originally booked for $350.

Yes, it might just be the perfect time to head south of the U.S. border: Sure, swine flu is still alive — in fact, it's now a global pandemic — but the chance of contracting it in Mexico, where the outbreak was first detected, is probably low.

“There was no one at our resort.
The service was spectacular.”

— PENNY MOELLER, TOURIST

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says that the epidemic peaked in Mexico in late April and now has spread throughout the Northern Hemisphere. The CDC says it will continue to be a threat south of the equator, where countries are entering the winter months. LISA J. ADAMS (AP)

RANDOM ACTS Sky Gall Comedian Mark Malkoff is trying to tackle his fear of flying by spending all of June living on a plane. He boarded his first flight June 1 from LaGuardia in New York, and plans to stay on AirTran flights until June 30, blogging about the experience at MarkonAirTran.com. (AP)

Vino, Techie

The old way to enjoy a glass of vino: Buy a bottle of something expensive — maybe French — open, pour, sip, repeat. The new way of the (wine) world: Using high-tech gadgets to help make mediocre merlots and cheap chards taste better. “There are all sorts of things that help your wine open up, releasing flavors and aromas,” says Leah Daniels, owner of Hill’s Kitchen (713 D St. SE; 202-543-1997). They include aerators (like the Vinturi, $50, which Daniels can barely keep in stock), decanters and even super-scientific insta-chillers. “People enjoy figuring out how to maximize their wine dollar,” Daniels says. Here are gadgets and glassware that let you swill tastier stuff without costing you more money. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

CHILLER THRILLER

You’re supposed to serve reds at cellar temperature (50 F to 55 F). Cool them sans (eek!) ice cubes with the Ravi ($50, Winestuff.com), a high-tech funnel you store in the freezer.

THE POUR HOUSE

Reds, be they Chateaufneufs or Charles Shaws, benefit from a bit of oxygen before being served. An etched decanter ($42, Vivaterra.com) does the job with Euro flair.

IN VINO, VERSATILE

Cut a bottle of wine’s foil, yank out its cork and pour it with a multiuse tool ($15, Hill’s Kitchen, 713 D St. SE; 202-543-1997). It also has a beer opener for drink dissenters.

WHAT A GRAPE PARTY

If your passion for pinots turns you into an oenophile, Skybar ($999, Surlatable.com) will chill, pour and keep fresh three bottles, creating a wine bar chez you.

HOW MERLOT CAN YOU GO?

Blomus’ steel wine spout ($20, Homebody, 715 Eighth St. SE; 202-544-8445) boasts tiny holes, which let air in to tame harsher tannins in strong reds.

I’LL TUMBLER FOR YOU

Haute stemware maker Reidel’s latest wine glass, the stylish “O” (three for $36, Glasswarereidel.com), suits either red or white varietals. Its mod base is easy to grip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can offer valuable assistance to someone who is not up to speed or familiar with the way things are currently done in your circle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to be torn between the desire to be alone and the need to interact with others in the professional arena.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are facing a golden opportunity, as someone in authority is watching you, waiting to see what decisions you make — and why.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be mistaking that which is illusory with that which is real and true. The difference may make itself known — though briefly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be unusually moody, and others may keep their distance as a result. Focus on those things that you can do on your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A disagreement between friends can be eased, and you can prove instrumental in restoring harmony. Many prize your outlook.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your dedication and strong will can serve you quite well — but always consider the well-being of those around you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may find that you can do good work even though you are not in your element. Trust in your ability to get along with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Now is no time for secrets — though you may feel it is neither the time to share everything freely. Avoid awkward encounters.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You should be able to balance friendship with the determined pursuit of personal goals. A casual decision makes a big difference.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't misinterpret certain key developments as they happen. How you see the past will surely influence the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Are you willing to pitch in if or when called upon to do so? Be generous with your skills and know-how at this time.

Today in History

1775 The Revolutionary War Battle of Bunker Hill takes place near Boston. The battle (which actually occurred on Breed's Hill) is a costly victory for the British, who suffer heavy losses while dislodging the rebels.

1885 The Statue of Liberty arrives in New York Harbor aboard the French ship Isere.

1961 Soviet ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev defects to the West while his troupe was in Paris.

1972 President Richard M. Nixon's eventual downfall begins with the arrest of five burglars inside Democratic national headquarters in Washington, D.C.'s Watergate complex.

1999 The Republican-controlled House narrowly votes to loosen restrictions on sales at gun shows, marking a victory for the National Rifle Association.

Sharon Papo and Amber Weiss got married in California June 17, 2008.

2008 Hundreds of same-sex couples marry in California on the first full day gay marriage is legal by order of the state's highest court. (However, California voters later approved Proposition 8, which restricted nuptials to a union between a man and a woman.)
